THANKYOU LETTER:

Thank you so much for your gift. My son has been in the hospital first in Cleveland and now in Columbus since two days before Thanksgiving. He is recovering from brain surgery and is currently in rehab. Your gift of "K' Nex" meant a lot to him, as building with his hands is something he is beginning to do again- one handed.

CITY: MCO:PILOT GROUP: SouthwestCOORDINATOR: Mark Plussa

Our MCO coordinator, Captain Mark Plussa, was very busy coordinating events during the year. As we mentioned in our last newsletter, the BICSI Cares organization donated a large sum of money to PFK to be used in the Central Florida area. Rather than reserve these funds for future events, we decided to distribute the funds to help the kids. Captain Plussa's first stop was the Russell Home. This home has relied completely on public funds for their support for severely handicapped children since 1944. They were extremely grateful for the $15,000 check that Captain Plussa presented to them. Captain Plussa's next stop was the Central Florida Children's home. There, Captain Plussa rounded up his fellow "crewmembers/part time kitchen staff" Chris Cerny, Bob Gentner, Ed Faath, and Tom Nagle, to serve the kids a big Italian dinner ordered from a very good Italian restaurant up the street. After everyone was finished eating, Mark & the other crewmembers personally handed out $100.00 gift cards to the kids. "You thought it was Christmas," remarked Captain Plussa, and added, "The kids were so well behaved, appreciative of the dinner & gifts, and were genuinely happy to have you visiting with them. We'll definitely be adding this destination to our list of visits during the holidays."

“Indy Pilots for kids added yet another visit to our schedule by adding Clarian North hospital this year. We saw almost 240 kids at four locations this past year and it was nice to have some new faces in the group. The two hospital visits went well with crews visiting each room and handing out gifts from pull behind wagons. At the two Saint Mary’s preschools pilots read books, chatted, and handed out stuffed stockings to 180 kids. The kids seemed especially interested this year. One of our volunteer flight attendants found a great resource for aviation related gifts and we purchased quite a few things in bulk from them at reasonable prices. The company is Daron Worldwide Trading and they supply many of the major airport gift shops with toys, models, etc. They carry the pilot hat you often see which the kids really like. Thanks to all those that helped make 2006 another fine year.”

Best regards,

Ming IND coordinator

CAPTAIN BALDY JR. HAS ARRIVED!

Thanks to the creative and collaborative efforts of Captain Mark Bogosian and Captain Tim Hill, we now have a plush doll of our mascot, “Captain Baldy.” The “junior” Captain Baldy is 14” tall, has PFK wings on his chest, and sports a PFK logo on the back of his blue flying jacket.

Both Mark and Tim worked over a year to design and create the doll that is pictured in the photos below. We would like to offer Mark and Tim our sincere appreciation for what they have accomplished. The kids are sure to like our smaller version of Captain Baldy!

2007 PILOTS FOR KIDS AWARD

Every year our board has the difficult task of selecting our annual Pilots For Kids recipient. This year we have selected ATL coordinators Captain Mike Neumeyer and Captain John Swanson.

In talking with Captain Swanson, he couldn't have been more humble, insisting that he did not deserve the award. Instead, he suggested that we present the award to his predecessor, Captain Mike Neumeyer. When we contacted Captain Neumeyer, he proposed that we give the award to Captain Swanson. Therefore, both of our fine gentlemen will share our 2007 Pilots For Kids award.

We asked Captain Neumeyer to share his thoughts about participating and he wrote the following:

I believe it was the year 1995 when a local ALPA representative asked me if I had ever heard of "Pilots for Kids" and suggested it might be something of interest to me. After our brief conversation and some research, I decided to become involved with the organization. Not only did I like the idea of visiting children in the hospital, but especially appreciated the fiscal responsibility of the charity, with 100% of our pilots' donations being used to buy gifts for these visits. As the new "Atlanta Coordinator" I began by soliciting donations and volunteers from the Delta Pilots based in Atlanta for the upcoming Christmas visits to our local hospitals. It became quickly evident that most of the hospitals receive a great deal of attention from various groups in December, so we only scheduled a couple of visits for that month. With generous donations and careful gift buying, we had enough funds to continue our visits monthly throughout the winter. That first year, we established a very good relationship with Scottish Rite Childrens Hospital in Atlanta, visiting over 100 children on each of five trips. After twelve satisfying years, we still find that the children and even the staff get excited to see pilots in uniform, roaming the halls, giving out gifts and brightening the day of all involved. Through this span of time, it became clear that although the children were the focus, we often have a greater impact on the parents.

They have spent many hours in the hospital and are very receptive to seeing us, as well as having someone spend a few minutes with them and lending a caring ear.

As a parent, seeing my young child in the hospital is one of the most difficult things I had ever dealt with. My personal experience came out well in the end, but illustrates the joy I feel as a participant in Pilots for Kids. It is a pleasure to make a small difference in what can be a trying time for both the children and their parents.

During my six years as the coordinator in Atlanta, a neighbor of mine, John Swanson, volunteered and helped in many ways. In the summer of 2000, my wife, Elaine and I decided to move to the mountains of North Georgia as empty nesters. Since that time, John has done an excellent job leading and coordinating the visits by pilots in Atlanta. It has been my privilege to work with him and I wish him the best as he prepares to pass the baton to another Delta pilot, Steve Stubbs. I would also like to extend my thanks to Ed Faath and the other board members who work year after year keeping this great charity going.

Fly safe!.....Mike Neumeyer
